Contributors

John Akker, Executive Director of the Network for Education and Academic Rights (NEAR). NEAR, a London-based UNESCO-sponsored non-governmental organization, is a worldwide watchdog group with the mission of facilitating academic freedom.

Enrique Desmond Arias, Assistant Professor of Government, John Jay College of Criminal Justice. Professor Arias received a B.A. from the Johns Hopkins University and a Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin at Madison. His research focuses on the structure of criminal organizations in Brazilian shantytowns and the implications of ongoing social violence for democracy. Professor Arias teaches classes on comparative political science and comparative criminal justice.

Antonio Brown, Assistant Professor of Political Science, Loyola Marymount University. Professor Brown's teaching and research focus on quantitative and qualitative studies of political culture and national identity in the United States and Western Europe.

Donald A. Downs, Hawkins Professor of Political Science, Professor of Law, and Professor of Journalism, University of Wisconsin, Madison. Professor Downs's books include The New Politics of Pornography (University of Chicago Press), More Than Victims: Battered Women, the Syndrome Society, and the Law (University of Chicago Press), and Nazis in Skokie: Freedom, Community, and the First Amendment (University of Notre Dame Press). His books have won the Corwin, Gladys M.

Kammerer, and Anisfield-Wolf book awards. He has written widely on free speech issues, including issues of academic freedom.

Evan Gerstmann, Associate Professor and Chair of the Political Science Department, Loyola Marymount University. Professor Gerstmann is the author of The Constitutional Underclass: Gays, Lesbians, and the Failure of Class-Based Equal Protection (University of Chicago Press) and Same-Sex Marriage and the Constitution (Cambridge University Press). He has also published in the Election Law Journal and PS and has written several book chapters, including a chapter on executive immunity with Christopher Shortell in The Presidency and the Law: The Clinton Legacy (University of Kansas Press).

M. Susan Lindee, Professor of History and Sociology of Science, University of Pennsylvania. Professor Lindee's books include The DNA Mystique: The Gene as a Cultural Icon (W. H. Freeman) and Suffering Made Real: American Science and the Survivors at Hiroshima (University of Chicago Press). Among her interests are issues of censorship of scientific research.

Robert M. O'Neil, Professor of Law, University Professor, and Director of the Thomas Jefferson Center for the Protection of Free Expression, University of Virginia. A former president of the University of Virginia, Professor O'Neil's has written several books, including The First Amendment and Civil Liability (Indiana University Press) and Free Speech in the College Community (Indiana University Press). Professor O'Neil is the president of the Virginia Council for Open Government, chairman of the Council for America's First Freedom, director of the Commonwealth Fund and the James River Corporation, and chair of the American Association of University Professors Committee on Academic Freedom and Tenure.

David M. Rabban, Centennial Chair in Law, University of Texas Law School. Professor Rabban is a former general counsel to the American Association of University Professors and is the author of Free Speech in Its Forgotten Years, 1870–1920 (Cambridge University Press), which received the Forkosch Prize from the Journal of the History of Ideas for "the best book in intellectual history published in 1997." His articles have appeared in the Yale Law Journal, the Stanford Law Review, the University of Chicago Law Review, and elsewhere.

Timothy C. Shiell, Professor of Philosophy, University of Wisconsin, Stout. Professor Shiell is a former Maybelle Ranney Price Professor (1998– 99) and Reinhold and Borghild Dahlgren Professor (2003–2005). He has written several books, including Campus Hate Speech on Trial (University Press of Kansas) and Legal Philosophy: Selected Readings (Wadsworth). He is currently working on Wisconsin's Free Speech Legacy, a multimedia resource for teachers, students, and citizens.

Paul M. Sniderman, Professor and Chair of the Political Science Department, Stanford University. Professor Sniderman has been the winner of many top awards, including the E. E. Schattschneider Award, the Mellon Fellowship, the Guggenheim Fellowship, and the Woodrow Wilson Foundation Prize of the American Political Science Association for best book published in political science, considering all fields. Books that he has written or co-written include The Scar of Race (Harvard University Press), The Clash of Rights: Liberty, Equality, and Legitimacy in Pluralist Democracies (Yale University Press), Reaching Beyond Race (Harvard University Press), and The Outsider: Prejudice and Politics in Italy (Princeton University Press).

Matthew J. Streb, Assistant Professor of Political Science, Northern Illinois University. Professor Streb is the author, co-author, editor, or co-editor of five books, including The New Electoral Politics of Race (University of Alabama Press) and Polls and Politics (SUNY Press). He has published more than a dozen articles and book chapters, including publications in Political Research Quarterly, Public Opinion Quarterly, Social Science Quarterly, and Election Law Journal.