

LIST OF FIGURES

I.1	Multilevel processes contributing to the emergence of indigenous postsecondary institutions	10
I.2	Heuristic model for the analysis of indigenous postsecondary institutions	15
1.1	“Hourglass” development of the world polity, ca. 1500–ca. 2000	26
1.2	Net number of Iberian, British, French, and American colonies, 1400–2000	29
3.1	Net number of colonies held by Great Britain and France, 1600–1900	94
4.1	Number of indigenous postsecondary institutions in the United States, Canada, New Zealand, and Australia	128
4.2	Combined enrollments at New Zealand’s three wananga, 1994–2008	137
4.3	Cross-national tertiary enrollment ratios, 1970–1995	143
4.4	Indigenous postsecondary enrollments as a percentage of total in Australia, Canada, the United States, and New Zealand	145
5.1	Cumulative number of historically black and tribal colleges, 1840–2000	157
6.1	Ethnocentric courses as a percentage of total courses at TCUs and HBCUs, 1977–2002	190
6.2	Percentage of ethnocentric courses per subject area, 1977–2002	191
6.3	Distribution of ethnocentric courses across fields of study, 1977–2002	193
6.4	Estimated number of ethnocentric courses at TCUs and HBCUs in 2002	198