

Contributors

Benjamin Powell is an assistant professor of economics at Suffolk University, an economist with the Beacon Hill Institute, and a research fellow at the Independent Institute. He received his PhD from George Mason University. Much of his research has focused on economic development. He is the author of more than two dozen scholarly articles and policy studies.

George B. N. Ayittey, a native of Ghana, is a distinguished economist at American University and president of the Free Africa Foundation, both in Washington, DC. He received his PhD from the University of Manitoba, Winnipeg. He is the author of several books on Africa, including Africa Unchained, Africa in Chaos, Africa Betrayed, and Indigenous African Institutions.

William J. Baumol is a professor of economics at New York University, senior research economist and professor emeritus at Princeton University, and the Harold Price professor of entrepreneurship and academic director at the Berkley Center for Entrepreneurial Studies. He received his PhD from the University of London. He is the author of more than thirty-five books and more than five hundred articles published in professional journals and newspapers.

Scott A. Beaulier is an assistant professor of economics at Beloit College and a fellow at the Center on Entrepreneurial Innovation at the Independent Institute. He received his PhD from George Mason University. He has conducted field research in Botswana and authored numerous articles on Botswana's economic development.

Peter J. Boettke is the BB&T professor for the study of capitalism at George Mason University and the research director of the Global Prosperity Initiative at the Mercatus Center. He received his PhD from George Mason University. He is the author of several books on the history, collapse, and transition from socialism in the former Soviet Union.

Christopher J. Coyne is an assistant professor of economics at West Virginia University. He received his PhD from George Mason University. He has conducted field research in Romania.

James A. Dorn is a professor of economics at Towson University and vice president for academic affairs at the Cato Institute. He received his PhD from the University of Virginia. Professor Dorn has edited or co-edited several books on China, most recently China's Future: Constructive Partner or Emerging Threat?

Randall G. Holcombe is DeVoe Moore professor of economics at Florida State University and senior fellow at the Madison Institute. He received his PhD from Virginia Polytechnic Institute. He is the author of ten books and more than one hundred articles published in academic and professional journals.

Dan Johansson is a research fellow at the Ratio Institute. He received his PhD from the Royal Institute of Technology. His research deals with the role of entrepreneurs, the effects of institutions on entrepreneurship, and firm formation and growth.

Robert A. Lawson is professor of economics and George H. Moor chair at Capital University. His PhD is from Florida State University. He is the co-author of The Economic Freedom of the World Annual Report.

Peter T. Leeson is a BB&T professor for the study of capitalism with the Mercatus Center at George Mason University, where he also earned his PhD. He has conducted field research in Romania.

Mancur Olson Jr. was distinguished university professor of economics and principal investigator of the Center for Institutional Reform and the Informal Sector (IRIS) at the University of Maryland. He received his doctorate from Harvard. He was the author of seminal works in economics and political science, including The Logic of Collective Action and The Rise and Decline of Nations.

Renuka Sane is a consultant for the Centre for Monitoring Indian Economy. He holds a master's degree in economics from the University of Mumbai and has previously served as a research associate at the Invest India Economic Foundation.

Frederic Sautet is a senior research fellow at the Mercatus Center at George Mason University. He has a PhD in economics from the Université de Paris Dauphine and has served as a senior analyst at the New Zealand Treasury and as a senior economist at the New Zealand Commerce Commission.

Parth J. Shah is president of the Centre for Civil Society, New Delhi. He received his PhD from Auburn University. He has edited several books dealing with India, including Profiles in Courage: Dissent on Indian Socialism.

Alvaro Vargas Llosa is the director of the Center on Global Prosperity at the Independent Institute. He received his BSE in international history from the London School of Economics. He is the author of Liberty for Latin America and numerous other books on Latin America.