

CONTENTS

List of Figures	ix
List of Tables	xi
Preface	xiii
Introduction	1
1 Growth of the State Under Mubarak: Follow the Revenue Trail	35
2 Changes in the Distribution of State Expenditures: Security Prevails	54
3 The Impact of the Fiscal Crisis on the Relationship Between Central and Local Government: Decentralization or Fragmentation?	76
4 From the Rentier to the Predatory State: Transformations in the Mechanisms for Generating Public Revenues and Their Political Consequences	97
5 The End of the Rentier/Caretaker State and the Rise of Egyptian Capitalism: A Fiscal Infrastructure for Democracy?	138
Conclusion	163
Epilogue: The Political Economy of Egypt's 2011 Uprising	171

viii CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	177
Notes	179
Bibliography	191
Index	203