

CONTRIBUTORS

Rene Almeling is Assistant Professor of Sociology at Yale University. She recently finished an appointment as a Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Scholar in Health Policy Research at the University of California, Berkeley/UCSF. She is completing a book on egg and sperm donation, and she has started a new research project on how gendered ideas about bodies shape the presentation of and response to genetic knowledge.

Elizabeth Bernstein is Assistant Professor of Women's Studies and Sociology at Barnard College, Columbia University. Her publications include Temporarily Yours: Intimacy, Authenticity, and the Commerce of Sex (University of Chicago Press, 2007); and Regulating Sex: the Politics of Intimacy and Identity (Routledge, 2005), coedited with Laurie Schaffner.

Eileen Boris is Hull Professor and Chair of Feminist Studies at the University of California, Santa Barbara, where she holds affiliate appointments in History and Black Studies and directs the Center for Research on Women and Social Justice. Her publications include Home to Work: Motherhood and the Politics of Industrial Homework in the United States (Cambridge University Press, 1994); The Practice of U.S. Women's History: Narratives, Intersections, and Dialogues (Rutgers University Press, 2007), coedited with S. J. Kleinberg and Vicki Ruiz; and Caring for America: Home Health Workers in the Shadow of the Welfare State (Oxford University Press, forthcoming), coauthored with Jennifer Klein.

Laura Briggs is Associate Professor and Head of Gender and Women's Studies at the University of Arizona, where she holds affiliate appointments in History, Anthropology, and Latin American Studies. Her publications include Reproducing Empire: Race, Sex, Science, and U.S. Imperialism in Puerto Rico (University of California Press, 2002); International Adoption: Global Inequalities and the Circulation of Children (New York University Press, 2009), coedited with Diana Marre; and The Politics of Transnational and Transracial Adoption (Duke University Press, forthcoming).

Dorothy Sue Cobble is Professor of History and Labor Studies at Rutgers University, New Brunswick, New Jersey. Her publications include Dishing It Out: Waitresses and Their Unions in the Twentieth Century (University of Illinois Press, 1991); Women and Unions: Forging a Partnership (Cornell University Press, 1994); The Other Women's Movement: Workplace Justice and Social Rights in Modern America (Princeton University Press, 2004), which won the 2005 Philip Taft Book Prize and other awards; and The Sex of Class: Women Transforming American Labor (Cornell University Press, 2007).

Ariel Ducey is Associate Professor of Sociology at the University of Calgary. She is now researching the use of new medical devices in urogynecology and how consulting firms shape health care systems. Her publications include Never Good Enough: Health Care Workers and the False Promise of Job Training (Cornell University Press, 2009).

Kimberly Hoang received her M.A. in Sociology from Stanford University and is a Ph.D. candidate in Sociology at UC Berkeley, where she works with Raka Ray. Her dissertation addresses the stratification of sex work in Ho Chi Minh City. She is the author of "Vietnamese Immigration and Incorporation in the United States since 1975," forthcoming from ABC-CLIO in 2012.

María de la Luz Ibarra is Associate Professor of Chicana and Chicano Studies at San Diego State University. Her articles focus on Mexican migrant women employed as care workers. She currently is writing a book entitled Extending Kinship: Mexican Women and Transnational Elder Care.

Miliann Kang is Assistant Professor of Women's, Gender, Sexuality Studies and affiliated faculty in Sociology and Asian/Asian American Studies at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst. Her book, The Managed Hand: Race, Gender, and the Body in Beauty Service Work (University of California Press, 2010), won the Sara Whaley book prize from the National Women's Studies Association. Currently, she is researching work-family issues for Asian American women and the ways that gender and race influence motherhood and career paths.

Jennifer Klein is Professor of History at Yale University. She writes on health care, pensions, Social Security, labor politics, and long-term care. Her publications include the prize-winning For All These Rights: Business, Labor, and the Shaping of America's Public-Private Welfare State (Princeton University Press, 2003); and Caring for America: Home Health Workers in the Shadow of the Welfare State (Oxford University Press, forthcoming), coauthored with Eileen Boris.

Premilla Nadasen is Associate Professor of History at Queens College, CUNY. She is an activist and a scholar who writes and gives public lectures about women's history, social policy, and grassroots organizing. Her publications include Welfare Warriors: The Welfare Rights Movement in the United States (Routledge University Press, 2005), winner of the John Hope Franklin Prize. She is currently writing a book on domestic worker organizing.

Rhacel Salazar Parreñas is Professor of Sociology at the University of Southern California. She is the author of numerous essays and books on gender, migration, and globalization, including The Force of Domesticity: Filipina Migrants and Globalization (New York University Press, 2008). She is currently writing a book on the labor and migration of Filipina entertainers in Tokyo's nightlife industry.

Seemin Qayum is a historical anthropologist and the author and editor of several works on nationalism, elites, and gender in modern Bolivia. She has been a consultant to national and international organizations in the fields of environment, development, gender, and culture. Her publications include Cultures of Servitude: Modernity, Domesticity, and Class in India (Stanford University Press, 2009), coauthored with Raka Ray.

Raka Ray is Sarah Kailath Chair in India Studies, Chair of the Center for South Asia Studies, and Professor of Sociology and South and Southeast Asian Studies at the University of California, Berkeley. Her publications include Fields of Protest: Women's Movements in India (University of Minnesota Press, 1999); and Cultures of Servitude: Modernity, Domesticity, and Class in India (Stanford University Press, 2009), coauthored with Seemin Qayum.

Ellen Reese is Associate Professor of Sociology at the University of California, Riverside. Her publications include Backlash against Welfare Mothers: Past and Present (University of California Press, 2005); and The Wages of Empire: Neoliberal Policies, Repression, and Women's Poverty (Paradigm Publishers, 2007), coedited with Amalia Cabezas and Marguerite Waller. She is currently writing They Say Cutback; We Say Fightback! Welfare Rights Activism in an Era of Retrenchment.

Becki Ross is Chair of Women's and Gender Studies at the University of British Columbia, Vancouver, where she holds a cross-appointment in Sociology. Her publications include Burlesque West: Showgirls, Sex, and Sin in Postwar Vancouver (University of Toronto Press, 2009).

Kalindi Vora is Assistant Professor of Ethnic Studies at the University of California, San Diego. She held a UC Presidential Post-Doctoral Fellowship at the University of California, Berkeley. She is currently working on a book manuscript about relations of interdependence and exchange between India and the United States with the working title Life Support: The Transmission of Vital Commodities between India and the U.S.

Jane Ward is Associate Professor of Women's Studies at the University of California, Riverside. Her publications include Respectably Queer (Vanderbilt University Press, 2008) and several articles on queer politics, masculinity, and sexuality.

Viviana A. Zelizer is Lloyd Cotsen '50 Professor of Sociology at Princeton University. She has published books on the development of life insurance, the changing economic and sentimental value of children, and the place of money in social life. Her publications include The Purchase of Intimacy (Princeton University Press, 2005).