

CONTENTS

Figures	ix
Preface	xi
Abbreviations	xv
Introduction	1
“A Secret Mission”	1
The Chapters	7
1 Forging a Contextual Practice: Assemblage and Erotic Poetics	13
The Art of Assemblage	13
Love’s Body as Poetry and Poetics	21
2 The Contextual Art of Robert Creeley’s Interviews	32
Content Is Never More Than an Extension of Context	32
Conversation and Collaboration	37
Aphorisms	46
3 Assemblage as Archeology and History:
Harry Smith’s Anthology of American Folk Music and
Charles Reznikoff’s Testimony	53
“A Metaphor of Universal Becoming”	53
“The Problem of Rhythm in Relation to Thought”	56
Assemblage as History	64
4 Visionary Assemblage:
Harry Smith and the Poetry of Allen Ginsberg,
Robert Duncan, and Jack Spicer	76
“To Have the Serpent Intertwined in Their Eyeballs”	76

Grand Collage	82
“The Big Lie of the Personal”	93
5 Surrealism and Kabbalah in Semina Culture: Wallace Berman Cultivates the Erotic in California Poetry and Art	99
California Context	103
With Artaud in Mexico	107
Kabbalah and Robert Duncan’s Letters	112
From Seeds to Tree	117
6 Before Caesar’s Gate, Robert Duncan Comes to Grief: The Vietnam War and the “Unengendered Child”	125
The Impasse	125
“Grief’s Its Proper Mode”	134
“The End of an Old Friendship”	137
“Sunless”	141
7 In Robert Duncan’s “Anima Rebellion,” Denise Levertov Meets the Goddess Kali	146
The Erotic Mother	146
“An Emptiness in God”	151
“An Anima Rebellion”	158
“Creative Strife”	165
Conclusion: Jerome Rothenberg’s “Symposium of the Whole”	167
Assemblage	167
Erotic Poetics	176
Notes	185
Works Cited	197
Index	211