

Contents

List of Tables ix

Preface xi

Abbreviations Used in the Text xvii

1. Introduction and Problem:
No Institution of Management Knowledge 1

PART I: INSTITUTIONAL FAULT LINES
IN AND AROUND THE BUSINESS SCHOOL 13

2. The Institutionalizing Research University:
Rise of the Scientific Tradition 15

3. The Nineteenth-Century Business School:
Fall of the Classical and Rise of the Vocational and School of Opportunity Traditions 35

4. The Twentieth-Century Business School:
Integrating the Vocational and Scientific Traditions 55

PART II: RECOVERING THE LOST FOUNDATIONS
OF A SCIENCE OF MANAGEMENT 75

5. Mary Parker Follett's Science of Reciprocal Relating and Creative Experience 77

6. Chester Barnard's Science of Responsible Experience 112
7. The Private Argument between Chester Barnard and Herbert Simon about the Boundaries of Management Science 152

PART III: BUILDING ON FOLLETT AND BARNARD 171

8. Integrating Research and Responsibility:
Collaborating with an Executive (with Max Périé) 173

9. Integrating Teaching, Research, and Responsibility:
Experimenting with Master's-Level Teaching 191

10. Conclusion and Solution:
Integrating the Knowledge Traditions and
Building a Science of Management 210

Appendix: Tables 217

References 221

Index 239