

Contents

List of Maps, Figures, and Tables	ix
Author's Note	xi
Acknowledgments	xiii
Introduction	i
Part One Feeding the City of Gourmets
1. South of the Mountains: The Political Economy of the Pearl River Delta	21
2. The Organization of Rice Supplies in Canton: The Formation of the Cantonese Provisioning Networks for Consumer Satisfaction	38
3. Strengthening the Canton-Hong Kong Ties: Rice Relief and the Development of the Transnational Rice Business	63
4. Politicizing the Enterprise: The Nationalist Revolution and the Cantonese Rice Business	86
Part Two Saving the Nation from Famine
5. Taste in Numbers: Science and the Chinese Food Problem	113
6. Taxes and Strikes: The Foreign-Rice Tax and Its Social Repercussions	136
7. Inventing "National Rice": The National Goods Movement and the Issue of Rice Quality	154
8. Granary of the Empire, Laboratory of the Nation: The Canton-Hankow Railway and the Hunan Rice Sales Project in Canton	175
9. Provincial Politics and National Rice: The Canton Famine of 1936-1937 and the South China Rice Trading Corporation	196
Conclusion	215

Notes	221
Select Glossary	255
Bibliography	267
Index	291