

Contents

	Illustrations	ix
	Note on Transliterations and Names	xi
	Acknowledgments	xiii
	Introduction
	That Children “Will Rise Up to Tell Their Children”	I
1	“Metropolis of Jews’ Streets”
	Shapes of Prague Memory in Jewish Town and Jewish Time	II
2	“Death Entered into Our Window”
	Living and Dead in Cemetery and Synagogue	47
3	“A Remembrance for Me and My Descendants”
	Autobiographical Writing and Familial Commemoration	83
4	“Established the Day”
	Authorship, Communal Authority, and Local Traditions	117
5	“That a Future Generation Will Know”
	Narrating History in Book, Tale, and Song	136
6	“In the Language People Understand”
	Print and Manuscript; Vernacular and Sacred; Women and Men	168

viii Contents

Conclusion
“No Need to Name It All”: Toward a History of Forgetting	187
Notes	203
Selected Bibliography	265
Index	289