

Illustrations

Figure 1.1	Antonín Langweil, cardboard model of nineteenth-century Prague	12
Figure 1.2	The autonomous towns of Prague	13
Figure 1.3	Ḥamisha Ḥumsbei Torah, Megillot, Haftarot . Prague: Gershom ben Solomon Kohen with sons Mordecai and Solomon, 1530	19
Figure 1.4	Zaks parokhet , 1602	30
Figure 1.5	Gravestone of Ḥanokh (Heni) ben Judah Leib Gedalyes	34
Figure 1.6	Glass commissioned for the Prague burial society, 1786/87	35
Figure 1.7	The same glass, viewed from a different angle, 1786/87	35
Figure 1.8	Months in the Hebrew calendar with Gregorian equivalents	38
Figure 2.1	Gravestone of Avigdor Kara, d. 1439	48
Figure 2.2	Gravestone of Hendl, daughter of Evril Gronim and wife of Jacob Bassevi, d. 1628	49
Figure 2.3	Page from the Altneuschul Memorbuch, ca. 1500	50
Figure 2.4	Page from the Altneuschul Memorbuch for Gadil ben Azriel Shamash, d. 1707	51
Figure 2.5	Gravestone of Neḥama, wife of Shalom Uri, d. 1576	57
Figure 2.6	From a bazkarah for Ḥanokh (Heni) ben Judah Leib Gedalyes	63
Figure 2.7	Parokhet donated by Mori Bischitz in memory of his wife, Reizl bat Moses Plohn	67
Figure 2.8	Gravestone of Rebekah bat Meir Tikotin, d. 1605	69

Figure 2.9	Gravestone of Jonah ben Meir Puria Pfefferkorn, d. 1536	70
Figure 2.10	Prague Castle, All Saints' Chapel, entrance to Vladislav Hall	71
Figure 2.11	Gravestone of Zalman ben Moses Hayyat, d. 1628	72
Figure 2.12	Torah curtain from Kriegshaber, Bavaria, 1723/24	81
Figure 3.1	Joseph Tein, Megillat bakela'im (copied 1840)	85
Figure 3.2	Family megillah of the Yampels-Segal family, 1721, showing how the family megillah was rolled like other sacred parchment scrolls	86
Figure 5.1	Prague Castle from the east, across the Vltava River	150
Figure 5.2	View of Prague, looking south from the Letná. 1591 engraving by Joris Hocfnagel and Franz Hogenberg	150
Figure 5.3	Marian column, in the center of Prague's Old Town Square, ca. early twentieth century	158
Figure 6.1	Title page of Sefer be'er sheva	182
Figure 7.1	Pinkas hazkarat neshamot of the Maisel Synagogue, nineteenth century, showing the needle used by the cantor to mark where he finished his weekly recitation of the bazkarot , so that the following week's cantor would know where to begin	188