
Contributors

HUSSEIN AGRAMA is Assistant Professor of Anthropology and of the Social Sciences at the University of Chicago. His book manuscript on law, religion, and secular power in contemporary Egypt is currently under review.

BANU BARGU is an Assistant Professor of Politics at the New School for Social Research and Eugene Lang College, where she teaches political theory. She has been the recipient of numerous teaching and research awards, including the John M. and Emily B. Clark Award for Distinguished Teaching. She is the author of the book manuscript "Human Weapons: Biopolitics and the Death Fast" (under review for publication) and is currently working on a new manuscript entitled "Sovereignty, Sacrifice, and Sedition."

MARY ANNE CASE is Arnold I. Shure Professor of Law at the University of Chicago. Among the fellowships she has held are the 2006–7 Crane Fellowship in Princeton University's Program in Law and Public Affairs and a 2004 Bosch Public Policy fellowship at the American Academy in Berlin.

JAKOB DE ROOVER is a Postdoctoral Fellow of the Research Foundation Flanders FWO at the Research Centre Vergelijkende Cultuurwetenschap, Ghent University, Belgium. His research concerns the secularization of political theory in general and the emergence of the liberal model of religious toleration in modern Europe and its implementation in colonial and postcolonial India.

MARKUS DRESSLER is Assistant Professor at Istanbul Technical University. He is co-editor of Secularism and Religion-Making and Sufis in Western Society. Currently he is finishing a book manuscript on the role of religion in the formation of Turkish nationalism.

DAVID M. ENGEL is SUNY Distinguished Service Professor at the Law School of the University at Buffalo, State University of New York. A former president of the Law and Society Association, his most recent books include Tort, Custom, and Karma: Globalization and Legal Consciousness in Thailand and Fault Lines: Tort Law as Cultural Practice.

THOMAS BLOM HANSEN is the Reliance-Dhirubhai Ambani Professor of South Asian Studies and Professor of Anthropology at Stanford University. He has published widely on Hindu nationalism, Hindu-Muslim conflicts in South Asia, and the anthropology of the postcolonial state. Recent publications include Wages of Violence: Naming and Identity in Postcolonial Bombay, and Melancholia of Freedom: Social Life in an Indian Township in South Africa.

TIM JENSEN is Associate Professor, Historian of Religions, Department of the Study of Religions, Institute of Philosophy, Education, and Religion, University of Southern Denmark, Odense. He is also General Secretary of the International Association for the History of Religions.

GREG JOHNSON is Associate Professor and Chair of the Department of Religious Studies at the University of Colorado, Boulder. His recent publications include Sacred Claims: Repatriation and Living Tradition and "Social Lives of the Dead: Contestations and Continuities in Native Hawaiian Repatriation Contexts," in Culture and Belonging: Symbolic Landscapes and Contesting Identity in Divided Societies.

TOMOKO MASUZAWA is Professor of History and Comparative Literature at the University of Michigan. Her publications include In Search of Dreamtime: The Quest for the Origin of Religion and The Invention of World Religions: Or How European Universalism Was Preserved in the Language of Pluralism.

STEPHANIE L. PHILLIPS is Professor of Law at the University at Buffalo, State University of New York. She has taught numerous courses and seminars exploring intersections of law and religion. Her current focus is upon theologies of religious pluralism, used as lenses for interpretation of the First Amendment religion clauses.

BRUCE ROSENSTOCK is Associate Professor in the Department of Religion at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. He is the author of New Men: Conversos, Christian Theology, and Society in Fifteenth-Century Spain and Philosophy and the Jewish Question: Mendelssohn, Rosenzweig, and Beyond.

NOAH SALOMON is Assistant Professor of Religion at Carleton College where he teaches courses in Islamic Studies. His research and writing has focused on contemporary Sufi thought and poetic genres, debates in Islamic knowledge and jurisprudence, Islamic political thought and praxis, and the changing fortunes of the idea of “the Islamic state” in contemporary Sudan.

JONATHAN SHEEHAN is Associate Professor of Early Modern European History at the University of California, Berkeley. He is the author of The Enlightenment Bible: Translation, Scholarship, Culture, which won the George Mosse Prize from the American Historical Association.

WINNIFRED FALLERS SULLIVAN is Professor of Law and Director of the Law, Religion, and Culture Program at the University at Buffalo, State University of New York. Her published works include Paying the Words Extra: Religious Discourse in the Supreme Court of the United States, The Impossibility of Religious Freedom and Prison Religion: Faith-based Reform and the Constitution.

MATEO TAUSSIG-RUBBO is associate professor of law at the University of Buffalo Law School. He earned a doctorate in anthropology from the University of Chicago and a law degree from Yale Law School. His research has focused on military outsourcing, immigration detention, and piracy in the Gulf of Aden. Taussig-Rubbo is the author of several articles on sacrifice, including “Outsourcing Sacrifice: The Labor of Private Military Contractors,” Yale Journal of Law & the Humanities (2009).

RACHEL WEIL is Associate Professor of History at Cornell University. Her first book, Political Passions: Gender, the Family and Political Argument in England 1680–1714, was published in 1999. She is currently working on a book tentatively entitled A Plague of Informers: Liberty, Security and the Credit of the Government in England after the Revolution of 1688.

ROBERT YELLE is Assistant Professor in the Department of History and the Helen Hardin Honors Program at the University of Memphis. He is the author of Explaining Mantras: Ritual, Rhetoric, and the Dream of a Natural Language in Hindu Tantra (Routledge 2003) and a number of journal articles. He received a fellowship from the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation in 2006.