

Contributors

THE EDITORS

Dr. Theo Farrell is Professor of War in the Modern World in the Department of War Studies at King's College London. His latest book is Transforming Military Power since the Cold War: Britain, France and the United States, 1991-2011 (Cambridge University Press, forthcoming), coauthored with Sten Rynning and Terry Terriff. Over 2009–10 he acted as an advisor to the British military and ISAF command on the campaign in Afghanistan.

Dr. Frans Osinga is Air Commodore and Professor at the War Studies Department of the Netherlands Defence Academy. His recent publications include Science, Strategy and War, the Strategic Theory of John Boyd (Routledge, 2007) and A Transformation Gap, American Innovations and European Military Change, edited with Theo Farrell and Terry Terriff (Stanford University Press, 2010).

Dr. James A. Russell is an Associate Professor in the Department of National Security Affairs at the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey, California. He is author of Innovation, Transformation and War: U.S. Counterinsurgency Operations in Anbar and Ninewa, 2005–7 (Stanford University Press, 2011).

THE AUTHORS

Dr. Antonio Giustozzi is Visiting Senior Research Fellow in the Department of War Studies at King's College London. His publications include The Art of Coercion (Hurst, 2011), Decoding the Taliban (Hurst, 2009), and Koran, Kalashnikov and Laptop (Hurst, 2007).

x CONTRIBUTORS

Dr. Adam Grissom is a Senior Political Scientist at RAND and Senior Visiting Research Fellow at the Center for Security Studies in Georgetown University's Edmund A. Walsh School of Foreign Service. He has authored numerous articles and studies on military innovation, special operations, and foreign internal defense.

Dr. Martijn Kitzen is a Research Scientist at the War Studies Department of the Netherlands Defence Academy.

Dr. Daniel Moran is Professor of International and Military History in the Department of National Security Affairs at the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey, California. Recent works include The People in Arms (Cambridge, 2006) and Wars of National Liberation (Harper-Collins, 2006).

Dr. Thomas Rid is a Reader in the Department of War Studies at King's College London. His most recent books are War 2.0 (Praeger, 2009) and Understanding Counterinsurgency (Routledge, 2010).

Dr. Sebastiaan Rietjens is a Research Scientist the War Studies Department of the Netherlands Defence Academy.

Dr. Sten Rynning is Professor of International Relations at the Department of Political Science, the University of Southern Denmark. He is author of NATO in Afghanistan: The Liberal Disconnect (Stanford University Press, 2012) and From the Hindu Kush to Lisbon: NATO, Afghanistan, and the Future of the Atlantic Alliance (UNISCI Press, 2010), coedited with Antonio Marquina.

Dr. Stephen Saideman holds the Paterson Chair in International Affairs at the Norman Paterson School of International Affairs at Carleton University. He has authored two books on the international relations of ethnic conflict and coedited a volume on intrastate conflict. He spent one year on the US Joint Staff via a Council on Foreign Relations International Affairs Fellowship.

Dr. Mikkel Vedby Rasmussen is Professor of Military Studies at the Department of Political Science, University of Copenhagen. He is author of The Risk Society at War (Cambridge, 2006) and a book in (published in Danish) on Denmark's war in Helmand (2011).

Dr. Martin Zapfe heads the Global Security research group at the Center for Security Studies (CSS) at the ETH Zurich. He has published on foreign and security policy for the German Ministry of Defense, Stiftung Wissenschaft und Politik, and the NATO Defense College. Previously, he worked as a consultant on international and security affairs at Joschka Fischer & Company in Berlin.