

Contributors

RICHARD ALBA: Distinguished Professor of Sociology at the Center for Urban Research, City University of New York (CUNY). His fields of interest are race, ethnicity, and immigration. His recent books include Blurring the Color Line: The New Chance for a More Integrated America (Harvard University Press, 2009), The Next Generation: Immigrant Youth in a Comparative Perspective (co-edited with Mary Waters, NYU Press, 2011), and the award-winning Remaking the American Mainstream: Assimilation and Contemporary Immigration (with V. Nee, Harvard University Press, 2003).

VINCENT BUSKENS: Professor of Theoretical Sociology, Utrecht University and Interuniversity Center for Social Science Theory and Methodology (ICS) and Professor of Empirical Legal Studies, Erasmus School of Law, Erasmus University Rotterdam. His main research areas are social dilemmas, cooperation, trust, social networks, mathematical sociology, complexity, experimental research, empirical studies on regulation and institutions, sociological applications of neuroscience. He is co-editor of Micro-Macro Links and Microfoundations (with W. Raub and M. van Assen, Routledge, 2012) and eTrust: Forming Relations in the Online World (with K. Cook, C. Snijders and C. Cheshire, Russell Sage, 2009).

CARLOS CAÑÓN: Economist at the Financial Stability Division of Banco de México (Mexican Central Bank). He received his PhD from the Toulouse School of Economics with a dissertation on the Theory and Econometric Models of Platforms. His main area of interest is industrial organization, market design, and econometrics.

COYE CHESHIRE: Associate professor at the UC Berkeley School of Information. He studies social exchange, interpersonal relationships, and paths of participation in computer-mediated environments. Recent articles have appeared in Personality and Social Psychology Bulletin, Daedalus, and Proceedings of the ACM Conference of Computer-Supported Cooperative Work (CSCW).

KAREN S. COOK: Ray Lyman Wilbur Professor of Sociology at Stanford University. Her fields of interest are social psychology, organizational behavior, group processes, social networks, and health care. For the Russell Sage Foundation, she has edited Trust in Society (2001), Trust and Distrust in Organizations: Emerging Perspectives (with R. Kramer, 2004), eTrust: Forming Relations in the Online World (with C. Snijders, V. Buskens and C. Cheshire, 2009), and Whom Can We Trust? (with M. Levi and R. Hardin, 2009).

NAN DIRK DE GRAAF: Professor of Sociology and Official Fellow, Nuffield College, University of Oxford. His main research areas are social stratification, cultural sociology, sociology of religion, pro-social behavior, and political sociology. He edited with Geoff Evans Political Choice Matters: Explaining the Strength of Class and Religious Cleavages in Cross-National Perspective (Oxford University Press, 2013). Recent articles have appeared in American Sociological Review, Sociology of Health and Illness, Journal of the Scientific Study of Religion, Research in Social Stratification and Mobility, and Journal of Quantitative Criminology.

HENK FLAP: Professor of Sociology Utrecht University and Interuniversity Center for Social Science Theory and Methodology (ICS). His main research interest is social capital. He is editor (with B.Völker) of Creation and Returns of Social Capital: A New Research Program (2005). Recent articles have appeared in Social Networks, European Sociological Review, and Social Science & Medicine.

NICOLAI J. FOSS: Professor of Strategy and Organization at the Copenhagen Business School and a part-time Professor of Knowledge-based Value Creation at the Norwegian School of Economics and Business Administration. His main areas of interest are the theory of the firm, economic organization, and strategy. Among his recent book publications are Management Innovation (with T. Pedersen, J. Pyndt and M. Schultz), Opportunity Discovery and Economic Organization: Entrepreneurship and the Theory of the Firm (with P. Klein, Cambridge University Press, 2011), and Knowledge Governance: Perspectives from Different Disciplines (with Snežina Michailova, Oxford University Press, 2009).

GUIDO FRIEBEL: Professor, Department of Economics and Business, Goethe University Frankfurt. His main area of interest is applied contract theory (organizations and personnel economics), industrial organization and regulation (in particular of railroads), and institutional and transition economics. Recent articles have appeared in American Economic Journal, Journal of Economic Behavior and Organization, and Economic Journal.

SIMON GÄCHTER: Professor of the Psychology of Economic Decision Making at the University of Nottingham, UK. His main area of interest is the role of social norms in economic decision making. He has published in Science, Nature, and economic journals such as the American Economic Review and Econometrica.

EDGAR KISER: Professor of Sociology and Political Science at the University of Washington. His main interests are the bureaucratization of states, the development of voting institutions, the bureaucratization and centralization of tax administration, and the methodology of historical sociology. His recent articles have appeared in the Annals of the Academy of Political and Social Science, American Sociological Review, and Political Power and Social Theory.

PETER G. KLEIN: Associate Professor of Applied Social Sciences at the University of Missouri. His research focuses on the economics of organization, entrepreneurship, and corporate strategy. His recent books include Organizing Entrepreneurial Judgment: A New Approach to the Firm (with N. Foss, Cambridge University Press, 2012), The Elgar Companion to Transaction Cost Economics (co-edited with M. E. Sykuta, Edward Elgar, 2010), and The Capitalist and the Entrepreneur: Essays on Organizations and Markets (Ludwig von Mises Institute, 2010).

SIEGWART LINDENBERG: Professor of Cognitive Sociology at the Inter-university Center for Social Science Theory and Methodology (ICS), University of Groningen. and at the Tilburg Institute for Behavioral Economics (TIBER), Tilburg University. His main interests lie in the areas of micro-foundations for theories on collective phenomena, self-regulation, pro- and antisocial behavior, groups and relationships, and governance structures in organizations. Recent articles have appeared in Science, Academy of Management Review, Criminology, PLoS ONE, and Aggressive Behavior.

ROSS L. MATSUEDA: Blumstein-Jordan Endowed Professor of Sociology at the University of Washington. His current research develops new methods of estimating trajectories of crime and drug use, examines social capital and informal control in neighborhoods, and estimates the effects of life course transitions on criminal trajectories. Recent articles have appeared in Journal of the American Statistical Association, American Sociological Review, Criminology, and Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science.

JAMES D. MORROW: Professor of Political Science and Research Professor at the Center for Political Studies at the University of Michigan. His current research addresses the role of election institutions in domestic and foreign policy and the effects of norms on international politics. He is the author of Game Theory for Political Scientists (Princeton University Press, 1994) and the forthcoming Order within Anarchy: The Laws of War as an International Institution, and co-author of the award-winning The Logic of Political Survival (with B. Bueno de Mesquita, A. Smith and R. M. Siverson, MIT Press, 2003).

VICTOR NEE: Frank and Rosa Rhodes Professor of Sociology, Cornell University. His areas of interest are in economic sociology, networks and institutions, and immigration. Recent articles have appeared in the Management Science, Daedalus, Social Forces, Kyklos, Journal of Institutional and Theoretical Economics, Management and Organization Review, and Research in the Sociology of Work. His books include Capitalism from Below: Markets and Institutional Change in China (with Sonja Opper, 2012), On Capitalism (co-edited with Richard Swedberg, 2007), Economic Sociology of Capitalism (coedited with Swedberg, 2005) and Remaking the American Mainstream: Assimilation and the New Immigration (with Richard Alba, 2003).

ERIN POWERS: PhD candidate in Sociology at the University of Washington, is writing a dissertation on the development and effects of group solidarity and social capital in self-help groups. Her areas of interest include political sociology, collective action, and community.

WERNER RAUB: Professor of Sociology, Utrecht University and Interuniversity Center for Social Science Theory and Methodology (ICS). His main research areas are theoretical sociology, organization theory and economic sociology, mathematical sociology, experiments and the use of complementary research designs in the social sciences, and sociological applications of neuroscience. He is co-editor of Micro-Macro Links and Microfoundations (with V. Buskens, and M. van Assen, Routledge, 2012).

IGNACIO SÁNCHEZ-CUENCA: Research Director of the Center for Advanced Study in the Social Sciences, Juan March Institute (Madrid). His areas of study include political violence, comparative politics, and democratic theory. He is the author of Controlling Governments. Voters, Institutions, and Accountability (co-edited with J. M. Maravall, Cambridge University Press, 2008) and articles published in The Journal of Conflict Resolution, The Journal of Peace Research, Politics & Society, The Annual Review of Political Science, and several others.

PAUL SEABRIGHT: Professor of Economics at the Toulouse School of Economics and Director of the Institute for Advanced Study in Toulouse. His current research lies in three areas of microeconomics: industrial organization and competition policy; the economics of networks and the digital society; and behavioral economics (especially the integration of evolutionary biology and anthropology with an understanding of the development of economic institutions in the very long run). Among his publications are The Company of Strangers: A Natural History of Economic Life (Princeton University Press, 2nd edition, 2010) and The War of the Sexes: How Conflict and Cooperation Have Shaped Men and Women from Prehistory to the Present (Princeton, 2012).

TOM A. B. SNIJDERS: Professor of Statistics in the Social Sciences at the University of Groningen and the University of Oxford, and Interuniversity Center for Social Science Theory and Methodology (ICS). His main research interests are in statistical methods for social networks, multilevel research / random coefficient models, mathematical sociology, and item response theory. Among his recent book publications is Multilevel Analysis: An Introduction to Basic and Advanced Multilevel Modeling (with R. Bosker, Sage, 2011).

FRANS N. STOKMAN: Professor of Social Science Research Methodology at the University of Groningen, The Netherlands. His main fields of interest are models of and strategic intervention in collective decision-making, social network analysis, and policy networks. Among his recent book publications is The European Union Decides (co-edited with R. Thomson, C. Achen, and T. Koenig, Cambridge University Press, 2006).

JELLE VAN DER KNOOP: Senior consultant at dutch. Holds a PhD in sociology. His main areas of interest are in the field of collective decision making processes and negotiation.

REINIER C. H. VAN OOSTEN: Expert for computer simulation at dutch. He holds a degree in econometrics. His main areas of interest are game theory and collective decision making.

ARJEN VAN WITTELOOSTUIJN: Professor of Organization and Strategy, University of Tilburg, Research Professor of Economics and Management at the University of Antwerp in Belgium, and Professor of Institutional Economics at Utrecht University in the Netherlands. His main research interest lies in the field of organizational ecology. Among his recent book publications is Nations and Firms in the Global Economy: An Introduction into International Economics and Business (co-authored with S. Brakman, H. Garretsen and C. van Marrewijk, Cambridge University Press, 2006).

BEATE VÖLKER: Professor of the Sociology of Social Capital at Utrecht University and Interuniversity Center for Social Science Theory and Methodology (ICS). Her main field of interest is the influence of contexts on social network patterns. She is editor (with H. Flap) of Creation and Returns of Social Capital: A New Research Program (Routledge, 2005).

RAFAEL WITTEK: Professor of Theoretical Sociology, Department of Sociology, University of Groningen and Interuniversity Center for Social Science Theory and Methodology (ICS). His main research areas are social network analysis, organization studies, and social theory. Recent articles have appeared in the Journal of Applied Psychology, Social Networks, and the Journal of Public Administration Research and Theory.