

The Authors

Christoph Zürcher is Professor of Political Science at the Graduate School of Public and International Affairs at the University of Ottawa. He is the author of The Post-Soviet Wars: Rebellion, Ethnic Conflict and Nationhood in the Caucasus (2007), as well as other publications in German and Russian.

Carrie Manning is Professor and Chair of Political Science at Georgia State University in Atlanta, Georgia. She is the author of The Making of Democrats: Elections and Party Development in Postwar Bosnia, El Salvador, and Mozambique (2008) and The Politics of Peace in Mozambique: Post-Conflict Democratization (2002).

Kristie D. Evenson is an independent researcher engaged with donors to evaluate and develop effective democratization and civil society related programming. She resides in Split, Croatia, and is a PhD candidate at the University of Bristol, School for Policy Studies, UK.

Rachel Hayman, PhD, is Head of Research at the International NGO Training and Research Centre (INTRAC) in Oxford, UK, and an Associate of the Centre of African Studies at the University of Edinburgh, UK.

Sarah Riese is a PhD candidate at Free University Berlin. She studies interaction processes between interveners and intervened in Bosnia and Herzegovina.

Nora Roehner, PhD, currently serves as advisor for the government of Afghanistan in Kabul, specializing in municipal governance and administration.