

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
Contributors	ix
Introduction James Burk	1
PART I: Choosing War
1 The End of (Military) History? The Demise of the Western Way of War Andrew J. Bacevich	13
2 Assessing Strategic Choices in the War on Terror Stephen Biddle and Peter D. Feaver	27
3 The Rise, Persistence, and Decline of the War on Terror Ronald R. Krebs	56
PART II: Using Force
4 Odysseus Prevails over Achilles: A Warrior Model Suited to Post-9/11 Conflicts Joseph Soeters	89

5	What “Success” Means in Afghanistan, Iraq, and Libya Christopher Dandeker	116
6	Torture, Harm, and the Prospect of Moral Repair James Burk	149
PART III: Mobilizing Resources
7	Isomorphism within NATO? Soldiers and Armed Forces before and after 9/11 Gerhard Kümmel	183
8	The Mobilization of Private Forces after 9/11: Ad Hoc Response to Inadequate Planning Deborah Avant	209
9	Globalization and al Qaeda’s Challenge to American Unipolarity Pascal Vennesson	232
	Conclusion James Burk and Christopher Dandeker	261
	Index	277