

Tables and Illustrations

Tables

9.1	Home types and American experiences	170
9.2	Home types and the Chinese American population in Silicon Valley	183

Illustrations

2.1	Japanese house	31
2.2	Multistory apartment building	33
4.1	Chinese courtyard house	62
4.2	Taiwanese family life and home environment transformations	63
4.3	Chinese shophouse	64
4.4	Taiwanese skyward house	65
4.5	Seniors practicing tai chi and qigong	67
4.6	Tom, a retired medical doctor, with his grandson	74
5.1	Los Angeles real estate advertisement in Taiwan	84
5.2	Transcultural lifestyles flow across the Pacific Ocean	94
5.3	Carrefour Market (Hsinchu, Taiwan)	98
6.1	Ranch 99 at Milpitas Square (California)	106
6.2	The Cupertino Chinatown in Silicon Valley (California)	108
6.3	Taiwanese population in the San Francisco Bay Area	112

6.4	Chinese population in the San Francisco Bay Area	113
6.5	An interior view of Ranch 99 (Milpitas, California)	116
6.6	A street market in Taiwan	117
7.1	Bamboo Village inside the Hsinchu Science Park as “heaven”	130
7.2	The chaotic streetscape outside Hsinchu Science Park as “hell”	130
7.3	Hewlett-Packard at Stanford Research Park (California)	136
7.4	Stanford Research Park (California)	136
7.5	A duplex house unit in Bamboo Village at the Hsinchu Science Park	139
8.1	Real estate model display for the High-tech Bilingual Community (Hsinchu)	151
8.2	A bird’s-eye view of Da-Si-Gu community (Hsinchu)	153
8.3	A view from the Pu-yu New City Plan site toward Da-Si-Gu (Hsinchu)	157
8.4	Tang-chen (Luxury Mansion) project (Shanghai, China)	162
9.1	A view of the Winbond project (Hsinchu)	172
9.2	A bird’s-eye view of suburban sprawl in Silicon Valley (California)	182
9.3	San Jose Starlite Court in Silicon Valley (California)	189