

CONTENTS

Introduction: Securing Privacy in the Internet Age Anupam Chander	1
--	---

PART 1 REVIEWING EXISTING SECURITY AND PRIVACY LAW

1 Defining the Legal Standard for Information Security: What Does “Reasonable” Security Really Mean? Thomas J. Smedinghoff	19
2 The Coming Wave of Internet-Related Security Litigation Ian C. Ballon	41
3 The Evolution of Data Protection as a Privacy Concern, and the Contract Law Dynamics Underlying It Jonathan K. Sobel, Karen J. Petrulakis, and Denelle M. Dixon-Thayer	55
4 Mutually Assured Protection: Toward Development of Relational Internet Data Security and Privacy Contracting Norms Andrea M. Matwyshyn	73
5 The International Privacy Regime Tim Wu	91

PART 2 PROMOTING PRIVACY AND SECURITY THROUGH THE COMMON LAW

6 The New Vulnerability: Data Security and Personal Information Daniel J. Solove	111
--	-----

vi CONTENTS

- 7 Beyond Contract: Utilizing Restitution to Reach Shadow Offenders and Safeguard Information Privacy 137
Marcy E. Peek
- 8 Improving Software Security: A Discussion of Liability for Unreasonably Insecure Software 155
Jennifer A. Chandler
- 9 Curing Cybersecurity Breaches Through Strict Products Liability 187
Shubha Ghosh and Vikram Mangalmurti

PART 3 PROMOTING PRIVACY AND SECURITY THROUGH STATUTORY REFORMS

- 10 Putting Identity Theft on Ice: Freezing Credit Reports to Prevent Lending to Impostors 207
Chris Jay Hoofnagle
- 11 Anonymous Disclosure of Security Breaches: Mitigating Harm and Facilitating Coordinated Response 221
Edward J. Janger and Paul M. Schwartz
- 12 RFID and Privacy 245
Jonathan Weinberg
- 13 Should Criminal Liability Be Used to Secure Data Privacy? 271
Susan W. Brenner
- 14 The Uneasy Case for National ID Cards 295
A. Michael Froomkin

PART 4 PROMOTING PRIVACY AND SECURITY THROUGH THE MARKET

- 15 Contracts, Markets, and Data Control 325
Raymond T. Nimmer
- 16 Three Economic Arguments for Cyberinsurance 345
Jay P. Kesan, Ruperto P. Majuca, and William J. Yurcik
- Index 367