

TABLES AND FIGURES

Tables

- 2.1. Attitudinal domains 20
- 3.1. Employment commitment in Sweden, Britain, Germany, and the U.S. 35
- 3.2. Job characteristics in Sweden, Britain, Germany, and the U.S. 37
- 3.3. Job satisfaction in Sweden, Britain, Germany, and the U.S. 41
- 3.4. Organizational commitment in Sweden, Britain, Germany, and the U.S. 43
- 3.5. Social relations at the workplace in Sweden, Britain, Germany, and the U.S. 45
- 3.6. Job satisfaction 47
- 3.7. Employment commitment index 48
- 3.8. Organizational commitment index 49
- 4.1. Legitimate income differences in Sweden, Britain, Germany, and the U.S. 58
- 4.2. Class differences in attitudes to income redistribution in Sweden, Britain, Germany, and the U.S. 61
- 4.3. Class differences in explanations for inequality in Sweden, Britain, Germany, and the U.S. 64
- 4.4. Class differences in attitudes to what money should buy in Sweden, Britain, Germany, and the U.S. 69
- 4.5. Correlations between indexes among unskilled workers and service class I in Sweden and the U.S. 72
- 5.1. Class differences in attitudes to state intervention in Sweden, Britain, Germany, and the U.S. 82
- 5.2. Government intervention index 85
- 5.3. Welfare spending index 86
- 5.4. Attitudes to welfare policies 90

5.5.	Spending index	94
5.6.	Spending index	97
6.1.	Class differences in attitudes to women's and men's paid work and household work in Sweden, Britain, Germany, and the U.S.	110
6.2.	Gender equality index	115
6.3.	Does more than fair share of household work	117
7.1.	Attitudes toward sexual behavior	130
7.2.	Attitudes toward infidelity and homosexuality	133
7.3.	Attitudes toward civil liberties and rights	136
7.4.	Attitudes toward civil rights and liberties	138
8.1.	Index values in different SEI categories	147
8.2.	Index values in different classes	149
8.3.	Individual class, household class, and attitudes	153
8.4.	Index values in difference classes and marginalized groups	158
8.5.	Class differences at spending index	158
8.6.	Index values in different classes within the marginal group	159
9.1.	Election manifestos in Sweden	174
A.1.	Achieved samples and response rates (percent) in the ISSP surveys	180
A.2.	Samples and response rates in the Swedish Welfare State Surveys	181
B.1.	Classes in Sweden, Britain, Germany, and the U.S.	185

Figures

2.1.	Interests and norms as mechanisms	21
2.2.	Political institutions and political articulation	26
3.1.	Employment commitment index	36
3.2.	What people have and what they lack in their jobs	39
3.3.	Organizational commitment index	44
4.1.	Pay-spread index	60
4.2.	Income-redistribution index	62
4.3.	Conflict index	66
4.4.	Incentives index	67
4.5.	Welfare purchase index	70
5.1.	Government intervention index	84
5.2.	Spending index	87
5.3.	Finance index	88
5.4.	Service index	89
6.1.	Gender equality index	112

7.1a.	Attitudes toward infidelity	132
7.1b.	Attitudes toward homosexuality	132
7.2a.	Attitudes toward infidelity	135
7.2b.	Attitudes toward homosexuality	135
7.3a.	Attitudes toward following the law without exception	137
7.3b.	Attitudes toward miscarriages of justice	137
7.4a.	Attitudes toward following the law without exception	140
7.4b.	Attitudes toward miscarriages of justice	140
9.1.	Institutions, class stratification, and class articulation	167